EASLEY APPOINTS MEMBERS TO COMMISSION ON CHILDREN WITH SPECIAL HEALTH CARE NEEDS

RALEIGH – Gov. Mike Easley appointed five members to the North Carolina Commission on Children with Special Health Care Needs.

Easley appointed Joshua Alexander of Chapel Hill, assistant professor of pediatrics at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine, and Lynn Mowbray Wagner of Chapel Hill, adjunct associate clinical professor of pediatrics at Duke University Medical Center.

Easley reappointed Cora Mitchell-Hayes of Raleigh, director of elementary special education of the Wake County Public School System; John Howard Morrow of Greenville, director of the Pitt County Health Department; and Sally Clark Sloop of Raleigh, family support specialist at the North Carolina Partnership for Children.

The North Carolina Council on Children with Special Health Care Needs monitors the availability and provision of health services to special needs children in North Carolina. The commission evaluates services provided to children with special needs under the Health Insurance Program for Children. The commission has eight members, each appointed by the Governor. The members serve two-year terms.
